It's one thing to book a nice hotel room, but it's a decidedly more decadent flex to "buy out" an entire luxury hotel. During these stressful times, deep-pocketed travelers are paying more for maximum privacy and minimal contact with strangers in the midst of the ongoing coronavirus outbreak. Some states are mandating two-week quarantines of visitors from places where cases are spiking, and the European Union has temporarily banned U.S. tourists after Europe reopens its borders on July 1. Nevertheless, some hotels are offering full buyouts so travelers can bring family and friends and have the whole place to themselves. The deals span from major splurges on sprawling luxury properties to relative bargains at more intimate getaways. Read on if you're looking to book an exclusive escape, or just want to fantasize about where to travel next.

Caribbean

Le Barthelemy Hotel & Spa – St. Barts

Le Barthelemy Hotel & Spa is set on the tranquil bay of Grand Cul-de-Sac in this famously swanky Caribbean getaway. It has 46 rooms, two miles of white-sand beaches, and turquoise waters that invite kitesurfing and scuba diving. Each room has a private outdoor enclave (some with private plunge pools), Hermes amenities, and a natural, open-air aesthetic. A full buy-out ranges anywhere from $67,000 to $190,000 per night, depending on the season, and requires a three-night minimum stay.
